SUBJECT: DTC Website Update

Purpose

This is to inform Danfoss customers of changes to the Danfoss Turbocor® (DTC) website <https://www.turbocoroem.com/>.

We have redesigned the landing page to provide a better user experience. The website now includes various menu categories at the bottom of the landing page. Refer to Figure 1 – DTC Website Landing Page for an example of the new layout. In addition to the layout change, we have included more service-related resources for technicians.

Access to Engineering-level information will continue to be restricted and access will only be approved for OEM employees involved with the design and application of the chiller.

Summary

The website landing page now provides service technicians with an expansive selection of service-related resources. As a result, OEM access will no longer be required to download the service-related resources.

We will be reviewing our database of users and those who are not involved with the design and application of the chiller may have their access restricted to service-related information.

Action Required
